

You may have noticed that the Metra station in Kenilworth looks a little different these days. It has been changed into a Greyhound bus station in Appleton, Wisconsin -- courtesy of Clint Eastwood and his new movie Faith of our Fathers. The movie follows the book, detailing the lives of the men who raised the Stars and Stripes over Iwo Jima in 1945. The moment was immortalized in Washington at the Marine Corps memorial -- and now our train station in Kenilworth did its part!
